The European Commission and the Fundació Mies van der Rohe announced today the list of 420 projects competing for the European Union Prize for Contemporary Architecture – Mies van der Rohe Award 2015.

27% of the proposals deal with Housing while 24% are Cultural facilities. 11% are connected to Education, 5% to Offices and the other 33% include mostly Sport, Commercial, Governmental, Transport and Urban typologies.

Initiated in 1987 after an agreement between the European Commission and the Barcelona City Hall, the 60.000€ prize is the highest award in European architecture and is awarded biennially to works completed within the previous two years. The principal objectives are to recognise and commend excellence in the field of architecture and to draw attention to the important contribution of European professionals in the development of new ideas and technologies and of the clients who support them.

Previous winners include:

The Emerging Architect Award consists of 20.000€, which is granted to professionals starting out on their careers.

The 2015 edition of the Prize presents a novelty, the Young Talent Architecture Prize (YTAP) which will recognise the best master degree projects from Europe. Their authors will have the opportunity to establish a network with the Winner, the Finalists and the Emerging Architect of the Prize while taking their first steps in the professional world.

Students of the 2014-2015 academic year from around 40 universities in Europe will have the possibility to participate in the first edition of the YTAP.

The Jury composition also includes a change: a Client who has supported high quality architecture will participate. Hansjörg Mölk, CEO of MPreis, has commissioned many supermarket buildings in Austria to local and European architects. Some of these have been shortlisted in previous editions of the Prize such as the Wenns supermarket by Rainer Köberl and Astrid Tschapeller and the Wattens supermarket by Dominique Perrault.

Works nominated for the Prize are put forward by independent experts from all over Europe as well as by the member associations of the Architects' Council of Europe, national architects' associations, and the Advisory Committee of the Prize.

Objectives of the Prize

Architecture brings a significant contribution to a sustainable European economy and also to European cultural and social life, since it influences to a great extent the way people live, work and spend their leisure time, as well as their quality of life, even if awareness of this is not always high among the public.

The aim of the European Union Prize for Contemporary Architecture is to highlight recent, excellent examples of architectural creativity of works which are less than two years old and to underline that modern architecture is socially and culturally rooted in European cities and is important to people's everyday lives.
